RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

- 1995-2001 New York University Dissertation Research New York, NY
 Researched under Professor Niall Bolger, Professor of Social Psychology at NYU. Evaluated how close relationships cope with a stressful event. Subjects were couples in committed relationships where one of them was preparing to take the New York State Bar Examination. Examined the effects of the examinees' distress on their partners to see if a process called emotional transmission could account for the adverse effects of the examinees' distress on their partners. Published one of the four dissertation studies in 1999.
- 1992-1993 Bellevue Hospital Center New York, NY
 Research Assistant and Coordinator, Psychiatry Department. Assisted on two research projects. First project explored the relationship between schizophrenia and alcohol dependence. Second project examined changes in the purpose in life of recovering alcoholics over their extended stay on alcohol rehabilitation unit. Responsibilities included interviewing patients, training new research assistants, overseeing projects, and data input. Worked closely with psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, and nursing staff.
